A CHALLENGE TO CANADIANS

EMERGENCY CALL!

From the shores of our Motherland comes an appeal for help which no true Canadian can fail to heed. While we live in comfort, death drops on that embattled island. The need for Red Cross assistance is urgent. Our sons and brothers are over there. On land, at sea, in the air, they face death daily. We must be prepared to help them when they are sick or wounded.

Red Cross help is needed on behalf of soldier and civilian alike. Hospitals and hospital equipment, surgical supplies and dressings, ambulances and X-Ray equipment will be needed. Overnight the need may become so urgent that lives may be sacrificed if help cannot be sent at once.

Never before has there been so great a need for Red Cross assistance. This challenge to humanity must be answered. Give to the Red Cross. Give to the utmost NOW!

Obituary.

The death of Helen, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bethge occurred on Sunday, October 18th.

When Dr. Greenberg was called Sunday morning the deceased was in a critical condition suffering from pneumonia. Dr. Greenberg ordered her removal to the Wainwright hospital immediately but she passed away before arriving at the hospital.

A short funeral service was held on Monday afternoon and interment took place in the Irma cemetery.

Two other children who were also very ill with the same complaint were rushed to the hospital on Sunday for medical treatment. Since then Mr. and Mrs. Bethge's eldest son Paul has had to be taken to the hospital for treatment. The sympathy of friends and neighbors is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Bethge.

A Healthful Sign

One of the most heartening and inspirational stories appearing recently in the daily press is that of the organization and operation of the Pierceland Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Co-operative Association, the first of its kind in Saskatchewan, perhaps the first on the prairies.

The story is heartening because it demonstrates that it is possible for whole communities to organize a practical effort to place themselves on a self-sustaining, or more nearly self-sustaining basis, and is inspirational because it may pave the way for other communities to improve their lot, either in the same manner as the people of the Pierceland district, or in some other direction.

While the scene of this experiment, for it is yet hardly beyond the experimental stage being in its first year, is laid in northwestern Saskatchewan, was near the Alberta boundary, it could have been staged in many parts of Alberta or Manitoba, indeed, anywhere that vegetables and fruit will grow.

Finding the raising of wheat a somewhat uncertain form of production, the people of the Pierceland district organized to set up a co-operative canning plant in May of this year. Capitalizing on the fact that the district could grow vegetables and small fruits to perfection and that wild fruits also grew in profusion, a canning factory was set up to can the produce of the gardens and the bush.

Wise in their generation, the people of the Pierceland district sought all the information they could before launching their experiment. They secured the assistance of the provincial department of agriculture as to the best methods of organizing, and called on their nearest Dominion experimental farm staff for demonstrations of the canning process. The necessary equipment was purchased and in the fall quantities of produce were processed, canned and marketed.

Helping Themselves

Of particular interest is the modern operandi, as outlined by B. N. Arnason, of the Co-operation and Markets Branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture: "The association furnishes the cans, the salt, sugar, syrup and other supplies. The growers take their fruit and vegetables to the canning plant, can their produce under supervision and take one half of the canned produce home with them. The association retains the other half for resale to meet operating expenses and to pay for the equipment. Any surplus will be distributed on a patronage basis. There will be some variation from the above procedure depending on the quantity which the grower takes to the plant, but in general the 50-50 basis is used."

"The object is to observe all standard requirements as to quality canning methods so that no difficulty will be experienced with regard to sale. To date most of the products have been disposed of in nearby towns. The products canned have been chiefly corn, peas, beans, cauliflower, carrots and several varieties of wild fruits."

A Beneficial Project

A self-help project of this nature will serve to confer many benefits upon those who participate in it, perhaps to an even greater extent than those who sponsored it may be aware at the present time. These advantages are both material and moral.

One of the material benefits of such an undertaking, and the one immediately obvious, of course, is the financial return which the sale of the processed product brings to the co-operators. Not only do they reap a direct cash return, but there is also an indirect cash benefit, inasmuch as the canned commodities retained by the participants save a cash outlay for vegetables and fruits during the late winter and spring months, by which time unprocessed home-stored produce would have perished.

Another material advantage is the fact that factory canning with proper equipment enables large quantities of produce to be preserved under ideal conditions, resulting in less loss than if it were done at home with more or less primitive equipment. Moreover, it can be taken for granted that more produce will be conserved in this manner than would be the case if each individual were to undertake the processing at home. Thus, with the abundance of fruit and vegetables usually to be found in most farm gardens, under this method, there should be an ample supply for every participant's household until next year's crops are available, and a substantial surplus for sale.

Then, too, the health value of a project of this kind, should not be overlooked. Canned vitamins in ample quantity for the household during those seasons of the year when they are not available, except at prohibitive cost, should yield dividends in better health.

Not by any means the least important is the moral value of a self-help undertaking of this or any other kind. After a decade of the pernicious effect of the direct relief system with its tendency to sap the moral fibre, it is refreshing to find that whole communities are still imbued with that spirit of self-reliance which urges them to fend for themselves and to knock the government props from under their feet at the earliest possible opportunity.

It was this spirit which enabled the pioneers of this country to play their part in building a great nation and it is this spirit which will enable us to win the war. And after the war is over, it is this spirit which will enable the people of the prairies to adjust themselves to the great changes which must inevitably come.

Wheat Exports Increase

In spite of the loss of markets in Scandinavia and the Low Countries, Canada's exports of wheat and wheat flour during the past crop year totalled 207.9 million bushels, which was the best volume exported since the 1935-36 crop year when 254 million bushels were exported. The Dominion entered the 1940-41 crop year with a carry-over of almost 301 million bushels.

Canada Has Good Bands

Orchestras Too Can Furnish Music Equal To The Best

Such is the predilection of Canadians for bands and dance orchestras from the United States, according to the Toronto Daily Star, that "thousands will go to hear, and dance to, one of these who would not be interested in a Canadian band or orchestra." This can hardly be regarded as fair to the achievements of our native musicians nor accurate in its estimate of Canadian approval of Canadian bands and orchestras.

If distance lends enchantment to imported bands and orchestras, there is plenty of distance in Canada. From Halifax to Victoria the country can supply musical organizations with just as many miles to their credit as any from across the border. And from what we hear over the radio, Canadian communities are not lacking in their musical development.

Some criticism has been made of sending Canadian money out of the country to bring in United States bandmen and orchestras at a time when the Exchange Control Board is stressing the importance of limiting expenditures in the United States to essentials to facilitate Canada's purchase there of the necessary war materials. If the same condition exists another year it might be worth considering whether representative Canadian bands and orchestras cannot fill all Canadian requirements. — Toronto Telegram

Building Was Shaken

But German Bombs Did Not Destroy Tussaud's Famous Museum

On a stairway in the marble lobby of a London building stood a blue-uniformed Canadian. Hundreds passed him daily. Some paused to ask questions. The guard's lips were always sealed — with wax. He was an effigy. The stairway led into Mme. Tussaud's museum, where hundreds of illustrious figures, living and dead, reposed. When a German bomb wrecked a cinema at the opposite end of the museum building, the effigies trembled but survived. The Chamber of Horrors downstairs was unharmed.

Mme. Marie Tussaud, the museum's founder, lived through the horrors of another cataclysm, the French Revolution. As a girl in Paris she was taught modeling by an uncle. Befriended by a sister of King Louis XVI, she lived in Versailles Palace, showed court ladies how to work in wax. When Revolution burst the mob brought her the heads of the King and Queen Marie Antoinette, fresh from the guillotine, to model. In 1802 she took her effigies to London, grew rich and lived to be 90. Her own wax figure stood in the museum with those of Hitler, Mussolini, President Roosevelt, King George. — New York Times

Gift From Queen Elizabeth Will Be Auctioned At New York Ball

Under the patronage of the Marquis of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, a Boodles for Britain ball will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 6. The proceeds will be donated to the organization which for the last eight months has been sending medical and surgical instruments to England, woolen clothing to enlisted men serving in the North Sea, and used clothing to British war refugees. Mrs. Wales Latham, president of Boodles for Britain and general chairman of the ball, has announced that the highlight of the event will be the auctioning of a gift donated by Queen Elizabeth of England. This is believed to be the first time that a reigning English Queen has sent a gift to America to be used for such a purpose.

Canadian Quilts

Cases Of Clothing Arriving In Britain From Canada

Cases of smart new clothes and of home-made quilts are arriving in Britain from Canada.

The clothes, most of them made by Canadian women, some of them bought, are being distributed to British refugees and any others who need them. Some were given to the Czech relief fund, some to Norwegianians, some went to children evacuated from the Channel Islands, who had no time to bring their own clothes.

The quilts are arriving because many Canadians in Britain wrote home describing the record-breaking cold spell of last winter. Women of the Dominion want to be sure their kinfolk in the fighting forces are going to be warm enough next winter.

They're mostly squares of colored cloth, stitched on to a quilt of thick flannelette.

Style In Names

Comparison Over Last Six Years Shows A Decided Change

According to the Stratford Beacon-Herald modern parents are turning away from Biblical names for their children. In Brooklyn, anyway. Such is the discovery of the chief librarian of the Brooklyn Public Library, following a survey of the juvenile registration files and a comparison of the names recently put down by those registered in the Brooklyn Directory six years ago.

According to Librarian Ferguson, former favorite names such as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Samuel, Nathan, Benjamin, Solomon and David have lost out to Bernard, Herbert, Howard, Leonard, Harold, Martin and Stanley. For girls, Sarah, Ida, Martha, Rebecca, Esther, Gertrude, Bertha and Judith, once popular, have been replaced by Shirley, Marie, Gloria, Joan, Grace, Sylvia, Doris and Evelyn. The rise of the name Shirley from comparative obscurity to sixth place this year was accounted for by the popularity of Shirley Temple in the movie world.

Six years ago John was No. 1 name for boys, but now it is second place, with Joseph as "top." William, the good old stand-by, has dropped from third to seventh slot among the first ten favorites. On the other hand, Charles has climbed from six to fourth notch, and George from tenth to fifth. James alone has proved stable, being still in eighth place.

The survey showed that some names appeal to certain religious groups, while others appear to be equally popular with all denominations. Among the latter names are: Alice, Anna, Arthur, Charles, Daniel, Dorothy, Florence, Harold, Mary, Robert and William.

Usually Miss Their Target

Canadian Sailors Say Nazi Bombers Have Very Poor Aim

Nazi bombers have poor aim in the opinion of the Canadians serving on H.M.C.S. Skeena, one of the destroyers, naval service headquarters disclosed.

Recently the Skeena was escorting a convoy of merchant ships which was attacked by German bombers about midnight. Although it was estimated more than 100 bombs were dropped not one hit was scored on the ships in the convoy.

One sailor on the deck of the Skeena had a box of matches and set a match aside, every time a bomb exploded. When the action was over he had a pile of 76 matches and officers estimated at least 20 to 25 per cent. of the bombs dropped did not explode.

No Argument

Three little boys were boasting of the abilities of their respective fathers.

Said one: "My father's a musician, and when he composes a song, he gets $5 for it."

"That's nothing," said the second. "My father's an author, and when he writes an article, he gets $10 for it."

"Well," said the third boy, "my father's a minister, and when he preaches a sermon it takes six men to carry the money up to him."

Beaver Preserve

Tract Set Aside At The Mouth Of The Mackenzie River

Scarcity of beaver in the Mackenzie River Delta area has prompted the Federal Department of Mines and Technical Surveys to set aside a huge beaver reserve at the mouth of the Mackenzie River. This restoration project is being undertaken for the benefit of the native population of the Arctic coast region who depend largely upon the fur resources for a livelihood.

The reserve sanctuary embraces approximately 14,000 square miles, and the regulations governing it provide that the hunting, trapping, taking, killing, shooting at, wounding, injuring or molesting of beaver is prohibited at all times.

When the beaver population of the area has increased sufficiently to warrant trapping, authority may be granted to issue special permits to trap beaver within the preserve.

Protein Content Of Wheat

Average For Western Canada Slightly Lower This Year

Although the average content for samples already tested is 14.3 per cent., compared with an average of 14 per cent. for the crops of the last 10 years, laboratory officials said that as more samples are received from northern areas, where the content is normally lower, the average would be reduced. Most samples already tested came from southern and central districts where threshing is well advanced.

Number of samples tested and average protein levels for each province were: Manitoba, 615, 14.4 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 1,785, 14.4 per cent.; Alberta, 784, 13.8 per cent. The values were within 1 per cent. of those for 1939.

Largest area of high protein wheat occurred in east-central Saskatchewan and west-central Manitoba. Wheat from southwest Saskatchewan, normally high in protein content, was lower than average.

Always Helps Himself

Hitler Does Not Depend Entirely On Help Of Stars

The Royal Gazette, Hamilton, Bermuda, says:

This is one mistake we must positively not make—that is, of over-estimating Herr Hitler's dependency upon stars and underestimating his preparations to co-operate with them. The superstition-ridden little beast firmly believes that the stars, his stars, are going to help him, but he is not going to let that stand in the way of his helping himself, and he has proved himself to be an indefatigable self-helper. Laugh as much as you like; it will do you good, but do not be convulsed to the point of dropping your guard. That would be to help Hitler and his stars, and you may be sure that he and his fellow star addicts are quite aware of it. A fanatic is always a despot, and the combination is no laughing matter.

CHAPTER XIX.

The opening of the Stock Exchange that morning was witnessed by a scene which had no parallel since the outbreak of the Great War. Stocks declined to an incredible extent, and even the banks reacted to the panic. It was too early to learn what had happened in New York, the British being five hours in advance of Eastern American time, and only at 4 o'clock that afternoon was the position on Wall Street revealed. Heavy selling—all gilt-edged stocks depreciated; the failure of a big brokerage house, and a suicide or two, were the first consequences observable in the press. In France the Bourse had been closed at noon, but there was heavy street selling, and one famous South American stock, which was the barometer in the market, had dropped to its lowest level. At 5 o'clock that evening a statement was issued to the press over the signatures of the Prime Ministers of Britain and France.

"There is no truth whatever in the statement that a state of tension exists between our two countries. The Bonn incident has been from first to last regarded as trivial, and the speech of the British Foreign Minister can only have been made in a moment of regrettable mental aberration."

For Jim the day's interest had nothing whatever to do with stock exchanges or the fall of shares; nor yet the fortune which he knew was being gathered, with every minute that passed, by Harlow and his agents. His interest was solely devoted to the mystery of Sir Joseph Layton's disappearance.

There had been present at Harlow's reception a very large number of notable people, many of whom were personal friends of the missing minister. They were emphatic in declaring that he had not returned to Park Lane, and they were as certain that Harlow had not left the house after Sir Joseph's departure.

MICKIE SAYS—

More than this, there were two policemen on duty at the door, and they were equally certain that Sir Joseph had not returned. The suggestion was made that the minister had gone to his country house in Cheshire, but when inquiry was set on foot it was learned that the house and the shooting had been rented by a rich American.

After the Prime Minister had returned from Paris, to which city he had gone immediately by airplane on his arrival in London, Jim saw him, and the chief officer of state was a greatly worried as well as a very tired man.

"Sir Joseph Layton has to be found!" he said, thumping his table. "I tell you this, Carlton, as I have told your superiors, that it was impossible, unless Sir Joseph went mad, that he could have stood up in the House of Commons and said something which he knew to be absolutely untrue, and which he himself would repudiate! Have you seen this man Harlow?"

"Yes, sir," said Jim.

"Did he tell you what was discussed by any chance? Was it the so-called Bonn incident?"

"Harlow says that they just talked about Macedonia and nothing else during the few minutes the Foreign Minister was in his house. And really, sir, I don't see how they could have had any very lengthy discussion; they were not together more than a few minutes. Apparently Sir Joseph went into a little room which Harlow uses for his more confidential interviews, and drank a glass of wine. They then talked about the reception and Sir Joseph congratulated him upon bringing the warring Macedonian elements together. It seems to have been, according to Harlow's account, the most uninteresting talk."

"The Prime Minister walked up and down the room with long strides, his chin on his breast."

"I can't understand it, I can't understand it!" he muttered. And then, abruptly: "Find Sir Joseph Layton."

That terminated the interview for Jim.

He was rattled, badly rattled, and in his distraction he could think of only one sedative. He rang up Aileen Rivers at her office and asked her to come to tea with him at the Automobile Club.

Aileen realized from the first that Jim was directly occupied by a mystery that was puzzling not only the country but the whole of the civilized world. But she understood also the reason he had sent for her, and she thought that she was being of use to him was a very grateful one.

He had hardly met her before he plunged straight into the story of his trouble.

"He may have been kidnapped, of course, and I should say it was very likely, though the distance between Palace Yard and Whitehall is very short; and Whitehall is so full of police that it hardly seems possible. We have advertised for the taxman who drove him away from the House, but so far have had no reply."

"Perhaps the taxman was also kidnapped?" she suggested.

"Perhaps so," he said a little drearily. "I do wish Foreign Ministers weren't so godlike that they have to travel alone! If he'd only waited a few minutes I would have joined him." And then, with a smile: "I'm laying my burdens upon you and you're writing wisely."

"I'm not," she affirmed stoutly.

She considered a moment before she asked:

"Could I not help you?"

He stared at her in amused wonder.

"How on earth could you help me? I'm being a brute, I know, but I can't exactly see—"

She was annoyed rather than hurt by his skepticism.

"It may be a presumptuous thing to offer assistance to the police," she said with a faint hint of sarcasm, "but I think what may be wrong with you now is that you want—what is the expression?—a new angle?"

"I certainly want several new angles," he confessed ruefully.

"Then I'll start in to give you one. Have you seen my uncle?"

His jaw dropped. He had forgotten all about Arthur Ingle, and never once had he associated him with the minister's disappearance.

"What a fool I am!" he gasped.

She examined his face steadily, as though she were considering whether or not to agree. In reality her mind was very far away.

"I only suggest my uncle because he called upon me this morning," she said. "At least, he was waiting for me when I came out to lunch. It is the first time I have seen him since the night he came back from Devonshire."

"What did he want to see you about?"

She laughed softly.

"He came with a most extraordinary offer, that I should keep house for him. And really, he offered me considerably more than the salary I am getting from Stebbings, and said he had no objection to my working in the daytime."

"You refused, of course?"

"I refused, of course," she repeated, "but he wasn't at all put out. I've never seen him in such an amiable frame of mind."

"How does he look?" asked Jim, remembering the unshaven face he had seen through the window.

"Very smart," was the surprising reply. "He told me he had been amusing himself with some of the big films that had appeared since he went to prison. He had hired them and bought a small projector. He really was fond of the pictures, as I know," the girl went on, "but it seems a queer thing to have shut oneself up for days just to see cinema plays!"

And he asked after you?" She nodded. "Why should he ask after you?"

"You are going to say, and that is the question that occurred to me. But he seems to have taken for granted that I am a very close friend of yours. He asked who had introduced me, and I told him your wretched little motorcar on the Thames Embankment!"

"Speak well of the dead," said Jim soberly. "Lizzie has cracked a cylinder."

"And now," she said, "prepare for a great shock."

"I brace myself," said Jim.

"He asked," the girl went on, a twinkle in her eyes, "whether I thought you would object to seeing him. I think he must have taken a sudden fancy to you."

"I've never met the gentleman," said Jim, "but that is an omission which shall be rectified without delay. We'll go round together! He will naturally jump at the conclusion that we're an engaged couple, but if you can stand that spur upon your intelligence—"

"I will be brave," said Aileen.

Mr. Arthur Ingle was only momentarily disconcerted by the appearance of his niece and the man who had filled his mind all that afternoon. Jim had met him once before, but only for a few seconds, when he had called to make an inquiry about Mrs. Gibbins. Now he was almost jovial.

"Where's friend Elk?" he asked, with a smile. "I understand you never moved without one another in these perilous times, when lunatic ministers are wandering about the country, and no man knows the hour or the day when he will be called up for active service! So you are Mr. James Carlton!"

He opened a silver cigar box and pushed it across to Jim, who made a careful selection.

"Aileen told you I wanted to see you, I suppose?—Well, I do. I'm a bit of a theorist, Mr. Carlton, and I have an idea that my theory is right. I wonder if you would be interested to know what it is?"

He pointedly ignored the presence of the girl except to put a chair for her.

The result is, Capt. Simpson said, that if quality is good, only the first batch has to be subjected to large sampling tests.

Testing Munitions

A New Method Is Used To Ensure Uniformity

How mathematics is put to a new use, to test the quality of ammunition for war, was described to the bicentennial conference of the University of Pennsylvania by Capt. Leslie E. Simpson, United States ordnance department.

The equations of statistical theory is the name of the formulae used to insure good shells both for big guns and rifles.

Sampling, Capt. Simpson explained, always has been the method of testing. It is too costly to inspect each shell. In the old way the samples were selected at random and the whole batch judged by their performance.

This, he said, permitted inferior stuff to pass when the random batch happened to be above average, and also sometimes threw out superior ammunition because one sample happened to be inferior.

The statistical theory uses sampling in a different way. Safe limits, or standards of excellence, are set up for the shells. When the first batch comes in from a manufacturer, numerous small samples are tried, not at random, but in the order of manufacture.

In these samples the average of all the defects shall not exceed the limits of the requirements and no defect shall be three times that allowed by the rules.

In subsequent batches only random samples are needed to learn whether quality of manufacture is being maintained.

The result is, Capt. Simpson said, that if quality is good, only the first batch has to be subjected to large sampling tests.

If the ammunition fails to pass the first test, its quality is poor, and the army is protected against accepting it.

Registration Check

People Must Notify Authorities Of Change Of Address

A large, printed notice, giving detailed instructions regarding registration of persons who have not yet registered, was sent out by Jules Castonguay, chief registrar, to postmasters throughout Canada to be posted conspicuously in post-offices.

The notice stipulates that persons who change their post office address must communicate particulars to the Dominion statistician, Ottawa. Persons marrying after registration closed Aug. 21 must communicate the date of their marriage and the names and addresses under which they were registered, within 14 days after the event occurs.

Accompanying the notice is a memorandum to postmasters, providing them with information useful to them as registrars and deputy registrars.

Regulations to be drawn to the attention of the public in this way are:

- 1.—Every resident of Canada must register within 30 days after his 16th birthday.
- 2.—Every resident of Canada absent from the Dominion during registration must, on returning to Canada, register within 30 days.
- 3.—Persons prevented from registering through illness must register as soon as they are able to travel to a post office.
- 4.—Persons temporarily residing at remote points during the time of registration, or who, for any other satisfactory reason, did not register, must register immediately upon their return to their ordinary place of residence.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

GENTILITY

Gentility is the ability to ignore in others those faults or blemishes we will not tolerate in ourselves.—Anon.

We should remember that we must not reflect on the wickedness of men, but contemplate the divine image in them; which, concealing and obliterating their faults, by its beauty and dignity assures us to embrace them in the arms of our love.—Gavin.

Who hath not learned that when alone he has his own thoughts to guard, and when struggling with mankind his temper, and in society his tongue?—Mary Baker Eddy.

We love ourselves notwithstanding our faults, and we ought to love our friends in like manner.—Cyrus.

Unless you bear with the faults of a friend, you betray your own.—Publius Syrus.

There is no outward sign of true courtesy that does not rest on a deep moral foundation.—Goethe.

Magazines For Fighting Force

Thousands Sent Weekly From Halifax To Merchant Navy And Convoys

Between six and ten thousand magazines, in well-sorted bundles of 24, are distributed every week from the Central Magazine Exchange in Halifax. The men of the fleet—the merchant navy and convoys—are the first concern of those in charge, but they also supply camps, hospitals and canteens while the supply lasts, and the convoys are able to take the magazines on to camps on the other side. Chaplains and ration wagons also co-operate in the distribution of the magazines.

The Exchange centre in Halifax is a busy place, with eleven teams of from six to ten women each working in turns from nine-thirty in the morning to five in the afternoon, but it is work which all know is tremendously appreciated.

Bigger Cattle Sales

During the first 35 weeks of 1940 ended August 29th, sales of cattle on Canadian stock yards and plants totalled 671,541 head, compared with 643,058 head during the corresponding 35 weeks of 1939. The increase in sales took place largely in July and August principally in Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia.

Learn Rules for Bridal Party

HOME SERVICE

TO HAVE A LOVELY BRIDAL KNOW WEDDING ETIQUETTE

"A perfect wedding"—you want everyone to say of your bridal. And, formal or simple, it will be perfect if you are informed on details of dress, etiquette for yourself and the bridal party.

You, the bride, are the star of the wedding drama and your attire sets the key. If you wear a formal gown and veil, groom and ushers wear cut-away or, if the ceremony's in the evening, they wear tails and white ties.

When the great day arrives, ushers are on hand an hour before the ceremony. They seat the bride's family on the left of the aisle, the groom's on the right. To a woman guest, an usher offers his right arm.

Then comes the moment when you arrive—and until the going away all eyes are on you. At the reception you receive with the bride party (your mother heading the line) or you and the groom receive alone.

You cut the cake and you and the groom share the first slice.

What are the bridesmaids' duties? How many should you have at an informal wedding? Our 32-page booklet tells you the correct at all types of wedding—etiquette, dress for bride party, guests. Lists expenses of the bride's family, expenses of the groom.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding," to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Wedding Bells

WINFIELD—DANIEL

The Anglican Church in Viking was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Margaret Daniel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Daniel of Rodno, became the bride of Abbie Winfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield, Rodno.

The bride, wearing a floor length gown of white sheer and carrying a bouquet of dahlias and baby's breath, entered the church on the arm of her father. Misses Beatty Winfield, Sheila Johnston, Joyce Reymont, wearing pink and blue floor length gowns and carrying bouquets of snapdragons and fern, acted as bridesmaids, and Betty Daniel, little sister of the bride, in a floor length gown of pink and a similar bouquet, was flower girl. Steward Daniel, brother of the bride, acted as best man. During the signing of the register, Mr. H. Reymont sang "Oh Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. Cary on the organ, after which the guests returned with the bridal party to the bride's home where a sumptuous feast was served to about forty friends. The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake, made by the bride's grandfather of Innisfree. The toast to the bride and groom was made by Mr. R. McFarlane, to the bridesmaids by Mr. Alf Winfield, to the bride's and groom's parents by Mr. W. Revell.

Following the reception the bride and groom motored to Innisfree where they spent a short time and then went on to Edmonton for a few days. The community joins in wishing them the very best of luck.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange

"I am hurt, says Sir Andrew Barton, I am hurt, but I am not slain. I lay me down and bleed awhile And then I'll rise and fight again."

This was the spirit that possessed the men of England in Elizabethan days, as they fought against the Spanish invader. It is the spirit which many thought had gone out of the English race; but now suddenly it has reappeared in all its ancient strength and glory, and we see the people of Britain in every walk of life, bombed and wounded by day and night rise anew each morn to work and to fight against the merciless and ruthless Nazis.

The courageous and determined people of Britain will, however, be heartened in their desperate struggle if they are assured and reassured that they have the enthusiastic encouragement and support of their friends overseas. Canadians, therefore who have relatives, friends and even acquaintances in Great Britain, can actually help in the great battle if they will write an occasional encouraging letter to friends overseas, telling how much the fine spirit and the dogged tenacity of the British people is admired in Canada; and telling particularly how we are vigorously training increasing numbers of our young men presently to stand shoulder to shoulder with our hard pressed friends in Britain.

LOCALS

Threshing should be about finished this week if the good weather continues.

Mr. Calvin Urquhart and family plan to leave for Ontario as soon as possible after their sale on Oct. 24. Mr. and Mrs. S. Simmons and daughter Margaret of Edberg, Alta., spent last Sunday visiting the Simmons families here. During the late afternoon and evening Mrs. Simmons mentioned that she thought they should be starting for home instead of staying over night. She had a feeling that their store would be burglarized during the night. However they decided to stay and about 8:30 Thanksgiving morning Mr. Simmons received a phone call saying his store had been entered and his safe blown. Apparently the robbers were looking for cash and as there was none there scarcely anything else was taken.

The Normal and high school students were all home for Thanksgiving. The Irma branch of the Red Cross society are planning to put on a concert at some future date in Irma. At this event Dr. Greenberg will show several interesting films on the War over France including the retreat from Dunkirk, Jasper-Banff colored film and others. Vocal and instrumental numbers by local talent will also be included in the program. The date will be announced as early as possible.

Mr. James Fenton enjoyed a visit from two of his sisters over the long weekend when Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Campbell and Mrs. Ed Armstrong of Edmonton motored down for the holiday.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill over the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Love, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hardy and Miss Mildred Hill, all of Edmonton.

During the Thanksgiving holidays Mr. and Mrs. Loche enjoyed a visit from Mrs. J. Loche and son Gerald of Banff, Alta., also Mr. and Mrs. G. McKay of Calgary.

The Alma Mater and Roseberry Ladies Aid are holding their annual fowl supper and bazaar in the Roseberry school on Friday evening, Nov. 1st. Please keep this date in mind. Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Urquhart had a visit from Mr. Urquhart's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jensen and also Mr. and Mrs. Lynn, all of Domremy, Sask.

The big dance of the season sponsored by the Irma Junior hockey club will be held in Keiffers hall on Oct. 21st. Music by Hardisty orchestra.

The Irma Ladies Aid annual tea and bazaar will be held on Saturday, November 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

Mrs. M. Trip arrived home on Saturday, October 12, after spending the past six months visiting relatives and friends in Mass. and eastern Canada.

Mrs. M. Christenson of Jasper, Alta., spent last week-end visiting friends in Irma and district.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Mills and family spent the week-end at the Smallwood home on Strawberry Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Rankin motored from Edmonton to spend Thanksgiving with the Smallwood family.

Clifford Kjos of Edmonton Normal spent the holiday with his sister, Mrs. Clifford Smallwood.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. McMillan of Edmonton spent the Thanksgiving holidays at the home of their brother, Mr. M. McMillan. Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Maguire of Chauvin also visited at the McMillan and Maguire homes over the long week-end.

SENIOR C.G.I.T.

The first meeting of the senior C.G.I.T. group was held in the church on October 15. The meeting opened with hymns 356 and 289. Miss Reeves gave a prayer. There were ten present.

The following officers were elected: president, Muriel Wilbraham; vice-president, Marjorie Webster; secretary, Kathleen Jones; treasurer, Irene Glasgow; pianist, Vera Sinnermon; press reporter, Audrey Jones.

It was decided to hold a Halloween party for both groups of the C.G.I.T. This party will be held in the church at 8 o'clock on Wednesday, October 26. Members will please wear costumes if possible.

The meeting closed with Taps.

LARGE SHIPMENT OF STEERS FROM KINSLELA-VIKING

One of the largest shipments of cattle in recent years gathered from the farms in the Viking and Kinlela districts left this week for Toronto when 233 head of steers averaging 1180 pounds each, shipped in eleven cars by O. Olsenberg, well known local cattle buyer.

Some CANADIAN APPLES

The WORLD'S FINEST FRUIT

RIPE, rosy Canadian Apples are one of the finest foods that can be bought. They're plump and wholesome, heavy with delicious juice. Eat two or three of these apples every day — they're good for you! And be sure to serve plenty of tasty apple desserts — apple pie, baked apples, apple dumplings and applesauce.

Canadian Apples are in your neighbourhood store. Buy them NOW.
